Berryman and Lovers

A poet is a falling maple
Crushing a good husband.
And sap runs from the trunk
Giving the corpse death's glaze
O! Widow bereaved –
(–Who fell for this jazz?)
Honey, you are a long drag.
–Sunshine, let me know your mind.
You got no mind for me,
Gift roses decorate a garbage pail.
–Fair is fair.
I know fine penmanship.
You are illiterate and blind.
–let me drop.
Summer nights you find sport.
Red checkered in nightshirt
Bellowing sassy whoops,
Tangled legs and arms
Share tickling affection.
I am a shameless spy.
–Sorry. That is a small glimpse.
Honey, you are dead.
–A widower bereaved.
In the forest
The fallen tree rots.
On the underside,
Clinging to the peeling bark
There is a wet mushroom.
